Looking at the News with Col. Hugh Clark

THIS debunking business is being carried pretty far. A food specialist now says it is not because they make a balanced ration that ham and eggs go together. Apparently they started keeping company when cooks discovered that ham gravy is a handy thing in which to fry eggs.

That reminds us of a roll-call of historical affinities we read once. It included

Anthony and Cleopatra
Ham and egg
Damon and Pythias
Lamb and mint sauce
Hero and Leander
Pretzels and beer
Romeo and Juliet
Pork and apple-sauce
David and Jonathan
Corn beef and cabbage

A lawyer told us the other day that the men and women for whom he has most sympathy are those whose all consists in farm mortgages. They have been unable to collect interest in the past three or four years and in many cases have had to pay taxes and fire insurance premiums to protect their claims. He says that clients of his who are in that unfortunate position are not rich by any means, but they did expect to have enough from the interest on their investments to live comfortably. Many of them are themselves farmers or retired farmers or farmers' widows. They do not like to take legal action and their lawyers have to advise them that it is of doubtful value anyway.

Third parties have never made any progress in Quebec and the Maritime provinces. In no other province is political partisanship so strong as in Nova Scotia. And so the result of the elections there is not surprising, the province being basically Liberal.

One of the great achievements of the government which was overthrown is the elimination of the Legislative Council. The late Hon. W. S. Fielding, when he was Premier tried in vain to abolish the second chamber but it was accomplished when Hon. E. N. Rhodes became Premier. Quebec still has a Legislative Council. Though Liberal in politics, Quebec is temperamentally conservative.

Stock exchanges were closed on Saturday all this summer and no one appears to have been injured thereby. Indeed there are some who believe it would be an advantage if they were closed all the other days of the week as well. If they were there are a lot of people who would greatly miss a couple of pages in their daily newspaper.

Twenty-three states have already declared for repeal of the 18th Amendment and not one has declared against repeal. Thirteen more states supporting repeal will put Uncle Sam definitely off the water-wagon and automatically remove Canada's ban on clearances of liquor to his country. Evidently this country was trying to help him enforce a law that he did not want.

Russia is tottering under the exactness of the Stalin regime.—Cable despatch

O, to what a sorry pass
The Bolsheviks have brought her!
For they it is who are to blame
They taught her how to totter.

FORMER RESIDENT PASSES

Word has been received in Vulcan of the death of Frank Garrison, a former resident of this district, at Hot Springs, Arkansas, on August 28. Mr. Garrison lived in this territory for 25 years, and left for Hot Springs late in the year 1929 and up till the time of death resided at that point. He had been ailing for some few years with heart trouble, the cause of death.

Deceased has interests in lands in the district and during his time of residence here farmed the same. He never married, and leaves one brother G. L. Garrison of Hot Springs, to mourn. Both parents predeceased him many years ago.

Possibility of Requiring Extra Teacher and Accommodation

Matter Left for Special Meeting Next Monday; Regular Session

Trustees P. Discher, R. Brown, F. Graham and P. McAskill were present at the regular monthly session of the school board of Vulcan school district No. 1902 held at the municipal office on Monday evening. Trustee Seaman was absent. Secretary Flood and Principal Irvine were present.

Minutes of the July meeting were read and approved. No meeting being held in August, the accounts for that month were read. The following current accounts were read and passed for payment on motion by Trustee Graham: Beaver Lumber $2.25; Geo. Monkman $2.25; Vulcan Supply $37.60; A.G. Telephones $4.25; Calgary Power $4.20; E. King $75.75; F. E. Osborne $136.00; G. M. Whicher $45.00.

Moved by Graham that the Principal collect all High School fees monthly in advance. Carried.

Discussion was then given to the requirements of an extra teacher and the opening of a another room in view of the large attendance this term. Trustee Discher stated that he had visited the school during the school hours and had noted the crowded condition of the high school rooms. He asked the board to give serious consideration of opening another room and engaging another teacher. Round table discussion was held on the matter and it was finally decided that the board visit the school en masse some time this week to look into the matter. Before the meeting adjourned a motion was passed calling a special meeting next Monday evening to decide on the matter. Principal Irvine expressed his views on the matter and gave figures of registration for this term. One hundred and twelve at the present time are attending high school with an increase to be expected. He asked that necessary supplementary reading be supplied in his talk with the board.

Moved by Discher that the necessary books be purchased and other needed supplies. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned to be called again on Monday evening.

LOCAL ITEMS

Little Donna Boner, in falling from a horse, was unfortunate in breaking her shoulder in two places. Following an X-ray at Vulcan, it was learned that the break was quite severe and she was taken to Calgary for medical treatment. Dr. Freeze and F. Clever accompanied.

Sign painters last week decorated the implement business premises of H. W. Johnston with bright colors and sign work advertising products sold by the business. Decoration of stores with sign work has been frequently done in Vulcan this season and adds much to the appearance of the buildings.

The Vulcan Fire Brigade turned out with both engines for fire practice on Monday afternoon; the first held for many months. A request was made by Mayor King at the last session of the town council for a more frequent turn-out of the brigade, at least once a month, and this was the first made at the request.

Citizens were pleased to learn of the success of Corporal Forsland at the annual shooting match of the R. C.M.P. held at Lethbridge on Thursday and Friday morning of last week. He broke the existing record for revolver shooting—238 points out of a possible 240—by scoring 239 points. The next best scores were 233 and 216.

Weather during the past week has been spotted with showers. During the week end heavy rains fell to the north and east of town. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday have been days of sunshine, although rain threatened several times but did not materialize. On driving through the district on Tuesday the writer found farms active with combines and threshers humming. North of town and towards Milo the threshing is further advanced than in other areas in the district.

"HUSH" TAKES SLAM VULCAN ADVOCATE

Suggests That O. L. McPherson Has Financial Interest in Advocate—Absolutely Not

It is certainly no honor for individual or publication to appear on the pages of "Hush," but the Vulcan Advocate has been selected for attack in Sept. 2 issue of that journal. So much attention has been called to this issue that it seems necessary to contradict the suggestions made therein.

In its choice of terms the whole article on Mr. McPherson is offensive to the personal convictions of the editor of the Advocate. But issue is taken with the following reflections on the ownership and integrity of this paper: "The big four flusher is alleged to have caused the servile editor of the Vulcan Advocate to attack the down-trodden Cora McPherson. Perhaps the subordination of the little country editor was not difficult, as it is freely rumored that this discomfited (surely the type slipped on that word) Minister of the Crown has a financial interest in the Vulcan Advocate, amongst his other treasured and secret possessions."

Who has alleged that Mr. McPherson brought any influence to bear on the "servile" editor. Such a statement is utterly and absolutely false. Mr. McPherson has no financial interest in the Advocate, and has never considered such an interest. If this is typical of his other alleged "treasured and secret possessions," these would make a sorry showing indeed. The Advocate has espoused the cause of Mr. McPherson from a sense of fair play and justice. No influence of any sort was brought to bear at any time. Anything which has been said in support of Mr. McPherson's cause has been voluntary and sincere.

Hush seems to find it incredible that a "little country editor" can take a stand on behalf of Mr. McPherson without "financial interest" being involved. What is the reason for this low estimate of the integrity of others?

Although there are many other features of the article in question which might be dwelt upon, one other will suffice.

Hush says that the Vulcan Advocate "charges that Cora McPherson has ruined her husband politically, financially, yes and physically." Not at all. The Advocate made no such charges. It merely presented a possible ultimate outcome supposing Mrs. McPherson persisted in carrying her case from court to court; a procedure which would finally injure irreparably all parties concerned without adding to the happiness or well-being of any.

The Vulcan Advocate now has personal knowledge of what damaging and absolutely baseless statements are made by Hush under the shelter of the terms "freely rumored," "is alleged" and so on.

Dr. and Mrs. Grimson of Ladner, B.C., are visiting in Vulcan at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. J. Wolfe.

Mrs. R. Pritchard of Calgary was a recent visitor in the district with her father Mr. Selland, and brothers Ed. and Henry Selland.

Mr. and Mrs. Heliwig and Miss May Morley of Lethbridge were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Morley.

Annie Ellis, daughter of W. J. Ellis was operated on in the Vulcan hospital on Tuesday for appendicitis. Her condition is reported as favorable.—Champion Chronicle.

Miss Constance McFarland left on Thursday last for Edmonton where she has been engaged to teach art classes on the staff of the Llanarthney School for girls.

The Bow Valley Resource reports the visit of Mrs. Ed. Arney and family accompanied by Mrs. D. McAfee and daughters to Arrowwood recently. Miss Ruth McKay is a Calgary visitor this week.

Dyce Allan has had on display in the store premises during the week a box of genuine Scotch heather from the old land. Many a Scot has shed a tear or two for his home country on viewing the heather and has been comforted by the presentation of a sprig by Dyce, who has memories of the purple flower covering the hill-sides of Scotland.

Town boulevards and lawns, as well as the late vegetables in the gardens have greatly benefited by the heavy showers of the past two weeks. Pasture lands in the district and farm gardens have also been revived by the moisture. The yield of the gardens will be small due to the dry growing season, and the grasshoppers did a tremendous amount of damage to the smaller plants.

The Advocate received on Monday a volume entitled "Canada Year Book 1933" from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. The book contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of all statistical information pertaining to the Dominion and is a comprehensive study of the social and economic conditions of Canada. Readers are welcome to the use of this volume for information. Private copies may be obtained from the department at Ottawa, for a small sum.

A letter was received last week by the Advocate from Rev. J. N. Brunton, who with Mrs. Brunton and son Douglas have recently settled in their new home at Nampaw, Alta. The letter reads: "We are getting settled in our new home and are greatly impressed with the delightful scenery, the beautiful homes and the sterling qualities of the first settlers of Alberta." Mr. Brunton requests that the Advocate be sent every week so that he may keep in touch with activities of the old home town.

Another automobile collision occurred on the Sunshine Trail north and east of Vulcan on Saturday last near the Arrowwood creek bridge. The accident happened late in the evening and the two cars were proceeding in opposite directions, when due to some unknown reason they crashed sideways, badly damaging both vehicles. The Arney Motor wrecking car was summoned and both were brought to town and repairs made. No one was injured. Operators of the cars were Commissioner T. B. Riley of Calgary and William Henderson of Lethbridge.

JUSTIFYING FAITH

A story is told of a certain district on the Western Canada prairie where crop failures had been experienced for several years. Crop seasons had opened each year with favorable conditions existing. But, as each season advanced, drouth became more pronounced until hopes which prevailed during the early season dwindled and eventually gave way to despair. "Another crop failure," was the report from that district, for several years on end.

A courageous people were those settlers of the district referred to. Year after year, they sowed and hoped to reap. Year after year they were disappointed. Drouth, hail, frost and pest alternated in the destruction of crops, and the district finally took on the appearance of a small Sahara. The soil was good. Approved methods of farming had been adhered to. Crop failure was not traceable to neglect, ignorance or any of the sins of omission to which humanity is heir. The farmers of that district were diligent, intelligent and fortitude was one of their predominant virtues. Yet they were reduced to a state of poverty, and through no fault of their own.

Hope deferred surely maketh the heart sick. These farmers saw the cards of Nature stacked against them. They began to lose faith in themselves and not a few professed disbelief in the existence of a just God. Skepticism and unbelief crowded out religious convictions in many a stout heart. Blasted hopes, poverty and near starvation followed Nature's unkind vagaries. Faith was lost, temporarily at least, by many a good man and woman. But, in spite of themselves, these men survived. They continued to breathe and move and have their being. No one perished through lack of food, clothing or shelter. Conditions took a turn for the better and eventually returned to normal. Faith returned, in a large degree, to former doubting minds. Disbelief gave way. Conviction that mortal man is but the servant of the Great Architect, again took hold. And these sturdy Westerners, or their progeny, are carrying on.

The result, had the last spark of faith in a Supreme Being become extinguished, may be left to the imagination.—Hanna Herald.

CANADA'S WHEAT QUOTA

One of the reactions to the World Wheat Agreement, in which Canada has participated, is a certain relief that at last cold figures are presented which tell the story of how much wheat is required in the world. A most startling feature of Prime Minister Bennett's report was the great increase in wheat productiveness of European countries. This year, France (to mention only one) is growing the 320 million bushels which she normally consumes, and will possibly have a surplus in addition to her last year's carry-over of 14 million. It is clear that Canada is not by any means "the bread basket of the world."

However, this wealth of wheat in France, serves to create a wheat problem in that country as well as in the major wheat producing countries. The French government has got itself deeply involved in the burden of wheat. Several years ago it began to offer a bonus and each year production has grown. Today this bonusing is a very heavy drain on the budget deficit, and there may be regrets that the program of bonusing was ever introduced. Complications of other natures are being faced by those countries which sought to erect barriers and make themselves superior to trade arrangements.

It would appear obvious to the advocates of high tariffs that there can be no selling without buying, and that much of the wheat anguish in which the world finds itself is due to restricted trade.

However, so far as the quota of Canada is concerned, the world figures show that a quota system is necessary, temporarily at least and facing that fact, Canada's share for exportation seems a very fair bargain from a national standpoint. This country is allowed to export 270,000,000 bushels. Anything above that must be consumed domestically. The question has now become one which must be solved within the Dominion.

It will not be difficult to arrive at a fair quota from each province. It is estimated that normal wheat production will have to be curtailed 15 per cent or the wheat put to uses other than exportation.

The arbiters of our wheat destiny will now have to match wits with the unpredictable ways of the weather. This will be their biggest problem.

CHURCH OF CO-OPERATION

We've just been reading an article: "I am on a church strike," says the editor of the Hesperian Herald. The writer said he has quit going to church. In a village of 400 there are four Protestant churches, none of them able to make both ends meet financially, and yet there have been no efforts to hold union services or to unite in any way. And as a protest, he quit going to any of them. Most people would say he's quit going because he doesn't want to contribute to their support. But there are many people in the land who feel about it as this man does, though they may not put it that way. But the futility of a number of stagnant churches trying to exist in a small community is apparent to everyone. They're so busy trying to keep ahead of their religious competitors that they forget personal profit. The government would permit no war profits to munition manufacturers, paying them only for production costs and peace time profits. The wealthier classes might be called upon for capital levy, with power to claim all earnings in excess of normal years. In every field, any idea of inflation would be suppressed. The Liberty Magazine in supporting this program of national defense, calls attention to the paramount virtues. If war were to break out, there would be no profiteers fattening on the calamities of others. There would be no munition makers building up fortunes. There would be no forces war time wages, that enriched the workman at home while his brother in the trenches fought and suffered and died for $30 a month. Prices would be stabilized, salaries would remain the same, munitions secured at cost. Power and transportation and such thousand and one facilities and operations, would be conscripted for the service of the country, just as impartially as lives. haven't time for the great business of the church.—Chesley Enterprise.

CONTROLLED CURRENCY

Lord MacMillan, chairman of the Royal Banking Commission, speaking in Montreal recently, indicated his trend of thought by stating that the world is moving toward a new monetary era. The idea of controlled currency is being considered throughout the world, and will in his opinion, bring developments that were not even considered a few years ago.

He instanced Sweden as a country which has resorted to a purely managed currency. In that country, a basic value relates major commodities and transactions, and relative values are maintained.

Tracing the old adherence to the gold standard, he records the upheavals of 1914, that rocked its domination. First the forced inflation as a consequence of war years, and then a rush back to the old standard. But, he says: "the new wine of post-war finance, was too much for the old gold standard bottle and the crack came in 1931. Today we are surveying the splinters."

"It has been rediscovered that money is not the main-spring, but the pendulum of economic mechanism, and it must be an adjustable pendulum."

Any new gold standard which may be arrived at internationally, must provide for managed currency within participating countries. There will have to be some principle which keeps international trade in fair balance. Canada, says Lord MacMillan, will have to consider her relation to other countries and dealings with other countries, as well as considering her own peculiar needs.

This is not regarded as a definite commitment to the central bank idea, but merely a consideration of this, as well as other alternatives.

SAPPING THE FIBRE

Dr. Mayo of Rochester, in alarm at the speed of modern life, urges that it be slowed down, before humanity is wrecked. Scientific and mechanical inventions and facilities have far outstripped man's corresponding development, and he is constitutionally unable to fall into harmony with the rhythm of the times. In the last twenty years, old methods and facilities have been scrapped; new speed, new efficiency have developed. Man, especially man already matured and "set in his ways," finds difficulty in readjusting himself both physically and mentally. Too often he drops out of the race, and is left hopelessly behind, stagnant and embittered. Another situation quite as tragic, is the feverish effort to readjust himself, to blend harmoniously with the faster tempo. This, too, takes its toll in collapse, nervous trouble or premature death.

It is in vain that Dr. Mayo calls for a slower pace. Every day more inventions, greater speed, drive humanity faster. And so it will go on. The only adjustment must come from within. It is useless to attempt to halt the crashing jazz of the world about us. If adults are to preserve health and sanity, and an enjoyment of life, they must develop immunity. When the spirit is at war with external conditions, there is bound to be injurious physical reaction.

Step by step with mechanical invention and economic changes, must come a greater study of man's mentality. The mind has great power over the physical, and this power can be increased. Purely mental culture, the ability to consider or accept changing conditions fairly and dispassionately, have lagged far behind development in more material fields.

BATTLE OF WHEAT

The year 1925 may be taken as a convenient point to mark the beginning of a conscious effort on the part of a number of European governments to protect domestic agriculture and to perfect the balance of their national economies, says the Monthly Commercial Letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Up to that time the industrialist, especially in Central Europe, had often been favoured at the expense of the farmer, who had indirectly to pay for the tariffs which were being built up to protect re-habilitated and, in some cases, new industries.

In 1925, however, Italy opened the "battle of wheat," and both she and Germany reverted to their pre-war tariffs on this cereal; France restored her tariff at the end of 1929. The "battle" thus begun has been continued with increasing vigour, for in recent years, as is only too well known, the European wheat import trade has been increasingly hampered by tariffs, embargoes, quotas, milling regulations, monopolies, bounties and by reciprocal arrangements whereby wheat is virtually made the object of barter, especially in the trade between Western and Eastern Europe, the latter forming an agricultural bloc for the diversion of the Western trade to the Danube and Baltic countries.

To a great extent, and at least for some time to come. Great Britain and the other countries of Northwestern Europe are, whether for economic or political reasons, removed from this embroglio. Cereal self-sufficiency is out of the question for them, and their interests lie with those of the great exporting countries of the Americas and of Australia.

PROFITLESS WAR

After the World War that was to end all war, the United States Congress drafted a program of national defense that, to a great extent, strips war of profiteering and thus removes one most objectionable feature. One of the provisions was immediate conscription. Another more materially important was that labor should be regulated and wages kept at peace time level, in order that the man at the machine should share more fairly with the man with a gun. Industry was to be conscripted at the same time as man power, for speedy action, and the prevention of war was to be conducted in this fashion. The most rankling bitterness has resulted from the fact that the strong and willing were forced to endanger their lives under horrible conditions, and impoverish themselves, while others at home waxed fat. There can be no fair distribution of sacrifice in any war. The man at the front would, under any circumstances, be the major sufferer. But some of the gross injustices would be removed if the United States' program were adopted and scrupulously carried out by all countries. And there would be less likelihood of war occurring.

SEPTEMBER IS TIME TO PLANT BULBS

Looking Forward to Next June,
Eager Gardener Busy Before
Freeze-Up

Fall can be a fairly busy season in the garden. Next to Spring this is the period when Nature is most active. There are certain vital operations, such as preparing plants and beds for winter conditions, planting bulbs for spring blooming and harvesting.

September is the ideal month to plant tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and other bulbs which will fill the garden with vivid and generous bloom from the time the last snow departs until June.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on quality. There is a vast difference in bulbs just as there is sometimes quite a difference in price. For the big, full-sized blooms, only No. 1 bulbs should be considered. Such are heavy, free from all mildew and other defects and run at least twice the size of the cheapest stock. The tulip, daffodil and hyacinth, come along so early in the spring that the flower must depend almost entirely on the food stored up in the fall planted bulb. Practically any color can be obtained in these bulbs and by the use of the early tulips and the later Darwins and Breeders, for instance, the season of bloom may be extended up to the time of the first of the regular garden flowers are ready. All these bulbs in addition to the beautiful Narcissus, can also be planted in pots for indoor bloom and by successional planting at ten day intervals from now on, it will be possible to have flowers from Christmas until spring.

CITIZEN EFFORT NEEDED

"I would point out that there is not a city in Canada (and I have visited practically all of them) where one will not find slum conditions. This is a challenge to the citizens of those communities to insist that these slums be abolished and replaced with modern sanitary buildings. I challenge the right of a landlord to receive rentals from an insanitary and dilapidated building when he is financially able to replace it with a decent structure."—Hon. H. H. Stevens.

RESTOCKING FISH IN TRIBUTARIES

Rainbow Trout from Banff for Six Side Streams on Highwood

John Martin of Banff Fish Hatchery and Sam Smith Fishery Guardian have been restocking the tributaries of the Highwood during the past week.

In all, 108,000 rainbow trout have been placed in Sullivan, Flat, Pekisko, Cataract, Hetherington and North Fork of Willow Creek. Forest Ranger Jack Bell of Mt. Sentinel station supplied horses, and packed in the fish to the streams in the Forest Reserve. The distribution is: Pekisko, 20,000; Sullivan 20,000; Flat, 20,000; Cataract 16,000; Hetherington 16,000; North Fork Willow 16,000.

Mr. Smith reports the supply of water in the tributaries as very fair, considering the dry season and the great evaporation. With cooler weather, the evaporation will be much less.

Fishing has been very good along the Highwood and sportsmen are looking back on a generally satisfactory season. Many good catches have been made all along the river near town, and no one has been obliged to travel far for a good day's sport—except a member of the Times' staff who has yet to make his first catch.

FILL COULEES IN FLOOD TIME

Suggestion for Water Storage Discussed in Youngstown District

Storing flood waters of Alberta streams in the coulees and lakes of east-central portions of the province where it could be utilized for stock watering purposes was revived during the recent session of municipal delegates at a meeting at Chinook, reported in the Youngstown Plaindealer. The idea was first suggested by the late William Pearce of Calgary, who foresaw the necessity of such conservation of moisture during the lifetime he had spent in the west.

The survey was made by federal department engineers and found to be feasible by a series of canals from northern rivers serving the portions of the province around the Youngstown and other districts.

H. G. McCrea, editor of the Hanna Herald addressed the delegates on the subject and urged that the information which had been gathered by the department of the interior be utilized and the work be carried out as a relief measure.

The municipal delegates urged upon the provincial government that the matter should be taken up.

OREGON CLAIMS
54 - 40 OR FIGHT

H. S. Patterson, Calgary, Gives Illustrated Lecture on Old Dispute Re Oregon Boundary

The average individual is very hazy in his memory of history, and the dispute regarding the Oregon boundary which more than once brought the U.S. and British governments to the verge of war, stirs only vague recollection.

It was this subject which Mr. H.S. Patterson of Calgary, revived in an illustrated talk given before a group of men last Thursday evening. The pictures which he threw on the screen, were reproductions from sketches made by those who took part in the British-U.S. negotiations. They illustrated the area of contention along the Columbia River, and the final boundary line arrived at in the Oregon Treaty of 1846.

The disputed territory became a source of contention soon after the Treaty of Ghent in 1814, and developed an intensity which culminated in that old battle cry of President Polk "54-40 or fight." However the eventual settlement was the 49th parallel, with Buchanan, U.S. Secretary of State and Pakenham the British envoy effecting the final terms.

The early history of Oregon was tied up with the Hudson Bay Company and northern fur traders. Although the H.B. Company discouraged any settlement, they sent to the Columbia river in 1824, a chief governor who ruled for 22 years. He built Fort Vancouver on the northern bank in 1825, and in 1829 began his settlement of Oregon City. He welcomed all settlers to his territory and eventually news of this new land reached St. Louis. Gradually the great trains of covered wagons began to trek into Oregon from the middle states. In 1841 the Americans in the region began to agitate for a form of civil government, the only laws being those of the Hudson Bay Co. For twenty years a provisional arrangement of joint occupancy of the territory served for the people, but was not satisfactory as a permanent condition. The dispute was fanned to war heat in 1844 to 45 but the Buchanan-Pakenham negotiation was finally sanctioned by Washington and London and the territory of Oregon bounded on the north by the 49th parallel.

The pictures which were shown by Mr. Patterson's son enhanced the interest of the talk, picturing the old Hudson Bay domination, and the drift westward of the U.S. settlers who wished to be under the U.S. flag.

Good Times in Britain

Mr. Patterson also described briefly his recent visit to London, England. He was outspoken in his admiration for the Britisher at home, both in business and socially, and eulogized the unruffled spirit evident on every side. He found London streets unique and fascinating and was impressed with the courtesy of officials and private citizens in solving the perplexities of the stranger. Despite narrow streets and tremendous traffic vehicles and pedestrians move along smoothly and steadily, with no congestion and a minimum of delay. The speaker attributed this remarkable smoothness to the law abiding nature of the British people, who have learned that observation of rules is the simplest and most satisfactory code.

The building trade appeared very brisk and healthy, and this briskness was reflected in other lines.

An inadvertent trip into the slums was an astonishing experience, in that there were none of the expected signs of poverty. Children looked happy, healthy and well nourished, and their elders were getting along placidly. There seems no doubt that

NOTES & COMMENTS

As a rule hens that moult before the first of September are poor layers and conversely those that moult later in the year are good layers.

Canada has about 350 million acres of land suitable for farming purposes and of this total 163 and one-half millions are in occupied areas, of which nearly 86 million acres are improved land.

In the face of acute trade restriction and keen competition from her rivals, Canada has succeeded in holding her own in world wheat trade and has exported during the cereal year just ended about 42 per cent. of world shipments.

Frank Ward, chief game guardian, of Calgary, is engaged in making arrangements for transfer of families from Turner Valley to farm lands under the Farm Settlement plan. They will be moved to 100 miles west of Edmonton.

Britain has developed a care of the unemployed which is at least keeping recipients happy.

The conditions which have hit our own country in the last three years, commenced in England immediately after the war, and in the past thirteen years the dole and unemployment insurance has been brought into smooth operation, which at least, brings contentment to the masses. Times generally appear better in England today than twelve years ago.

World Conference

A great blow to the World Conference was the note from President Roosevelt. It had been felt by all participating nations that the stabilization of currency was a fundamental objective. After Premier MacDonald's visit to Washington, there had been every assurance that United States shared this conviction and was wholeheartedly behind the movement. For this reason President Roosevelt's discouraging note was a paralyzing blow to all representatives. Whatever Mr. Roosevelt's reasons, this factor played a serious part in the consequent lapse of purpose and objective.

Mr. Patterson was impressed with the historic richness of England, and coming from a new and pioneer country, felt that it was inevitable that British character must be strengthened and deepened by these great reminders of the past, which abound on every side.

Looking at the News

We owe a great deal to the men who developed wheat that ripens quickly and therefore can be grown in latitudes that were impossible before, but the man who will gain undying fame is he who produces grains that will thrive in dry weather as in moist—the same as weeds do.

The correct word is autumn, not fall says a philologist. Still, Shakespeare did not say "O what an autumn was there, my countrymen."

We have said that we know no such thing in Canada as one law for the rich and one for the poor, but that is subject to qualification. There is one law which makes a rich man subject to income and super-taxes and another law which makes his estate subject to succession duties. These laws do not apply to the poor, but there is a law which applies only to the poor and that is the old age pensions act. A rich man cannot take advantage of this law without first losing his money, and he would be a fool to lose his money merely to qualify for a pension.
